Million-dollar view for $375 a month

1134 Burrard St.

141 coveted spots up for grabs at the city's new social-housing site

From the 350-square-foot corner unit on the top floor of Vancouver's newest social-housing building, the lucky tenant will enjoy million-dollar views of English Bay and the North Shore mountains.

The suite comes with a private bathroom and kitchen, simple furniture, and a bedbug-resistant single mattress.

Rent is just $375 per month.

More than 1,200 low-income residents applied to live at 1134 Burrard St., the latest of the 14 social-housing sites built in partnership between B.C. Housing and the City of Vancouver. These sites are a major part of the strategy to solve homelessness.

But there are only 141 spots in the approximately $28-million building. It's slated to open in May, about one year later than scheduled, according to the city.

The Kettle Society, which will operate the pet-friendly building, took Metro on a tour Thursday, a day after the preliminary 2014 homeless count revealed rising numbers of people sleeping on Vancouver's streets.

Raphael McKitrick and Nancy Keough of the Kettle Society pose in the 16th-floor corner unit at the latest B.C. Housing site at 1134 Burrard St. The Kettle Society will operate the social-housing building. JENNIFER GAUTHIER/FOR METRO

Half the people in the building will move in off the streets or from shelters, 30 per cent will come from single-room-occupancy hotels and 20 per cent will comprise those at risk of homelessness. Thirty units are earmarked for youth under 25 and 10 per cent for people with high mental-health needs.

Before they move in, their belongings will spend two hours in a "bedbug sauna" to kill any pests, said the Kettle's environmental-services manager Raphael McKitrick.

The rooms are airtight to prevent the spread of bedbugs, the wood-fibre floors are burn-proof and the heating and water systems meet LEED Gold standards, McKitrick said.

The idea is that building it right will prevent the site from degrading into the dilapidated single-room-occupancy hotels in the Downtown Eastside.

Moving into this building will change the lives of those selected through the difficult application process, building manager Damian Murphy said. He personally read every application.

Murphy knows people will criticize the government for building social housing on high-end real estate when the average Vancouverite could never afford the property. But he argues homeless people deserve a safe, decent, affordable place to live.

"To get to this point, it's not just like someone slept out on the street for a few weeks and now they're being gifted with this million-dollar view," he said. "To get to this point folks have gone through a lot of struggles, in some cases many years of homelessness."

Judge refuses to ban witness ID despite threats

Revelations of several death threats, including a $500,000 bounty on the life of a former B.C. gang kingpin, failed to persuade a judge to grant the man extra protections before he resumed testimony against alleged ex-associates.

B.C. Supreme Court Justice Catherine Wedge dismissed a second application Thursday for a publication ban on the identity of Michael Le, founder of the Red Scorpions gang, who is a key witness in the trial of two men accused in the drug-related murders of six people near Vancouver.

Le, 29, had been standing trial alongside the men until November, when he pleaded guilty for his role in the case and signed an immunity agreement with the Crown.

Wedge's decision can be reported, but details of the lawyer's rationale for a ban cannot.

Wedge said the request to ban Le's name from publication, as well as the names of any individuals he might identify as members of the triads gang — to which he also belonged — would not make him safer.

"Any person or persons with knowledge of or interest in this trial knows Mr. Le's identity — his admitted role in the conspiracy to murder, his guilty plea to the conspiracy count and his agreement to testify for the prosecution against his former co-accused," Wedge said.

Mayor denies failing at homelessness goal

Setbacks. Preliminary count shows number of people on street has doubled in a year

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

Rival parties have criticized Vision Vancouver for having "absolutely no success" in its goal to end street homelessness by 2015, and community organizations say the city hasn't done enough to stop reno-victions and rent hikes in the Downtown Eastside.

But the mayor doesn't regret making the pledge, nor is he worried that the grim statistics from the preliminary 2014 homeless count — the number of people sleeping on the street doubled in a year — will hurt his chances at re-election in November.

"Big commitments are really a way to keep pressure and urgency in the mix," Mayor Gregor Robertson said in an interview Thursday.

Indeed, the mayor still believes there's time for street homelessness to drop dramatically before winter and said the city has a target to "solve" homelessness by 2021.

With about 600 units of social and interim housing coming on site, the city has a head start but will need to push for more winter shelter beds, he said.

At stake

"There's lots of pressure now, but ultimately it's to ensure people aren't dying in our streets."
Mayor Gregor Robertson

Robertson pointed to delays in B.C. Housing site openings for this year's poor numbers. The city fast-tracked the development for the 14 sites, he said. But four were delayed due to city approval processes and negotiations with neighbours over crane swings, according to B.C. Housing.

Moving forward, Robertson plans to push the issue with the provincial and federal governments. He will also lobby the province to close loopholes in the Residential Tenancy Act that allow landlords to boost rent after renovations, a major problem at dilapidated rooms in the Downtown Eastside.

Robertson is frustrated but said the issue shouldn't be about politics.

"People who are trying to make this a political issue are just being a nuisance to our overall goal," he said.

"This is the responsibility of governments. I will keep deploying all resources the City of Vancouver can muster and I will be pushing on provincial and federal counterparts to do the same."

Too cute to be true? Teacup pup importer gets online flak

Michelle Lee.
LuxPup owner claims competitor breeders are attacking her on the web

THANDI FLETCHER
vancouver@metronews.ca

A Vancouver woman facing complaints about her teacup puppy importing business says she is the target of an online smear campaign led by competitor dog breeders.

Michelle Lee, the owner of LuxPup — a Vancouver-based business that imports tiny toy dogs from South Korean breeders and sells them online for thousands of dollars — believes many of the complaints against her business come from competitor companies trying to damage her reputation.

"Breeders like to slander each other," Lee told Metro. "There are many cases like this online."

LuxPup is one of two Vancouver teacup puppy businesses featured in an April 22 story. The story interviewed Angel Jeffries, a LuxPup customer who paid $3,800 for a dog she believed had birth defects and didn't come with the promised paperwork to prove it was purebred.

Lee acknowledged that she promised Jeffries the registration papers before she sold her the dog, but didn't realize how complicated the process would be to get the documents. She later told Jeffries that it wouldn't be possible and offered to re-sell the dog, but said she never heard back from her.

After a year of waiting for the registration papers, Jeffries said she did not want to send the dog back to Lee.

"At that point, I did not trust her," she said. "I didn't think I would have received any money."

Similar complaints can be found on Facebook and consumer complaint websites.

But Lee said the complaints against her business are unfounded and are often posted by competitor breeders.

She maintains that the majority of her customers are happy. Those with negative experiences are more likely to post their experiences online than happy customers, she said.

"Often, if you receive an inferior product or service, you'll be inclined to share that information with others," she said.

One of Lee's happy customers is Jodie Scott of Moose Jaw, Sask., who bought two tiny Maltese puppies from LuxPup in 2010 and 2012. The first dog died after two years when it accidentally choked on a piece of cheese.

Scott said she was unaware of online complaints about LuxPup, but said her experience was a positive one and that she trusts Lee. Both dogs were healthy when she received them, she said.

"I have a business and I know what it's like when people make a false complaint," said Scott. "You're an easy target."

Death in Stanley Park ruled a homicide

Fifth of 2014. Police say early indications suggest woman was not the victim of a random attack

Vancouver police say the death of a woman in Stanley Park on Thursday morning is a homicide and that it was targeted.

Around 6 a.m., police and paramedics were called to the Brockton Oval area of the park after a report of a woman in medical distress. Paramedics tried to resuscitate her, but she was pronounced dead at the scene, said Const. Brian Montague.

Police say early indications suggest her death is not the result of a random attack and that she was targeted.

The victim has been identified as 33-year-old Thi Yen Le from Surrey.

The official cause and time of death will be determined by the coroner, Montague said. Forensic investigators were at the scene gathering evidence Thursday.

"We are holding back any evidence regarding how she was killed at this time," said Montague.

This is Vancouver's fifth homicide of 2014.

Anyone with information about the incident is asked to contact the VPD Homicide Unit at 604-717-2500 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477. THANDI FLETCHER/METRO

'Knee-jerk' reaction. Fort Nelson mayor apologizes for summit expulsions

The mayor of Fort Nelson, B.C., has issued a public apology to provincial bureaucrats and gas industry officials expelled from a First Nations summit on liquefied natural gas, saying there is too much at stake for his community to keep silent.

Last week, the Fort Nelson First Nation asked both parties to leave its LNG summit over the province's decision to change environment assessment rules for gas plants.

In an open letter, Bill Streeper, mayor of the Northern Rockies Regional Municipality, which includes Fort Nelson, said he understands the frustration of the aboriginal community but calls the expulsion a "knee-jerk" reaction.

"This town is 100 per cent depending on the LNG and the gas industry for its existence," Streeper said in a telephone interview Thursday.

"We have no forest industry here. It has been shut down for over four years now. We don't see any revitalization in the forest industry for the next four or five years. We're a one-industry town. If LNG fails, this town will fail."

Fort Nelson Chief Sharleen Gail asked the government and industry representatives to leave the summit after learning that the province had quietly revised environmental assessment rules to exempt so-called "sweet" gas from automatic environmental assessment.

Gail said her community, at the heart of a potential natural gas boom, was deeply insulted.

"At a time when B.C. has said it wants to reset the relationship with First Nations as part of the LNG strategy, the province has acted in bad faith," she said in a statement.

Environment Minister Mary Polak quickly reversed the decision after the Fort Nelson incident, saying government would consult with First Nations.

The broader community is very supportive of the natural gas industry, Streeper said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woman charged in 2012 pedestrian crosswalk death

Charges have been laid against a Vancouver woman 18 months after a pedestrian was killed at a crosswalk and another suffered serious injuries.

Police say 33-year-old Nansi Morris-Jones has been charged with dangerous driving causing death and dangerous driving causing bodily harm in the November 2012 incident.

Man charged after fight ends with stabbing

A Chilliwack man faces charges of assault with a weapon and aggravated assault after a stabbing.

RCMP say a consensual fight started between two people Wednesday, but escalated to assault when a third person allegedly stabbed one of the fighters with a knife.

The suspect fled, but was arrested a short distance away. He is due in a Chilliwack court Thursday.

Speeding Ferrari driver fined

Chastised by the RCMP. The driver, who was handed a $483 ticket for excessive speed, had a young child in the passenger seat

Mounties say they're appalled by the actions of a Ferrari driver from Langley, B.C., who used area roads as his personal race track.

Cpl. Robert McDonald says not only was the F430 sports car clocked at speeds 101 kilometres above the posted 80-kilometre limit, the 49-year-old was not travelling alone.

McDonald says a young child was in the seat beside him.

Both were OK but had to find another way home after the April 19 incident when the high-end race car was immediately impounded for seven days.

The man was also handed a $483 ticket for excessive speed.

Officers say the case is even more unsettling because the driver knew he was stopped at the same Surrey intersection where two vehicles collided almost a year ago, killing six people, including five from the same family.

Oregon Spotted Frog. Vancouver Aquarium breeds endangered frogs

The Vancouver Aquarium has successfully bred tadpoles of one of Canada's most endangered frogs.

B.C.'s Oregon Spotted Frog Recovery Team, which has successfully bred the tadpoles every year since 2010, will release the tadpoles back into the wild near Agassiz on Friday.

The Oregon spotted frog species has been on a steady decline along the West Coast of North America, disappearing from 90 per cent of its range in British Columbia.

Their traditional range in B.C. is from South Surrey, up the Fraser Valley to Hope.

In 2010, the Vancouver Aquarium became the first place on earth to breed the species, with the constant goal of maintaining and expanding the endangered species.

Between 2011 and 2013, more than 10,000 tadpoles and juvenile frogs have been released into the wild.

Decade of cuts add up at B.C. schools

12 years of shortfall.
And another 12 to feel their impacts

When the Vancouver School Board finalizes its 2014-15 budget next week it will likely include the death of the Continuing Education program, mean the elimination of 23 full-time positions, bring about a shorter school year and see the closure of 28 classrooms.

The $11.65 million in cuts needed by law to balance the books will be heaped on top of a $53.8-million shortfall that the district has endured since 2007-08 and that has already claimed 197 full-time equivalent positions and seen learning assistance, library services and student supervision and supports — to name a few — slashed beyond recognition.

If an amendment to use provincial holdback funding to save the elementary school Band and Strings program is approved by the board April 30, that program will be spared.

But the one-year reprieve could just be a temporary stay of execution if 12 years of continuous budget shortfalls (coinciding with the provincial government's switch to a simplified per-student funding formula) are anything to go by.

"I've been here since 2002 and it's been a shortfall every year except for one," said VSB secretary treasurer Rick Krowchuk. "We're at the stage where we're cutting back to the core."

The bottom line, according to educators, isn't neat and tidy bookkeeping.

It's that student outcomes will suffer as they cycle through a K-12 public system that's been in a desperate cost-saving mode for the entirety of their education.

"We're not going to see the impacts of the reductions for another 10-12 years, but even now, the students who started at the beginning of the Liberal regime have seen a lot of supports that are now gone," said Vancouver School Board chair Patti Bacchus. "Every year is getting harder. We're always in damage control when we could be focusing on improving services and helping students do better."

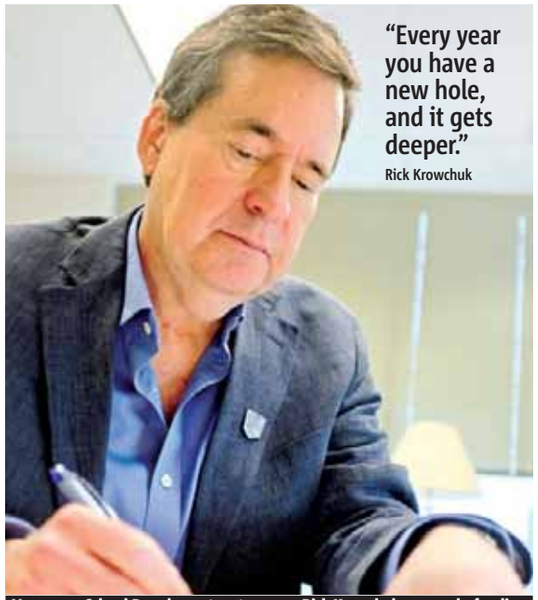
The same cries can be heard throughout the province, with the opposition NDP estimating school districts cumulatively are considering eliminating at least 350 teaching and support staff jobs.

"There isn't a school board that is doing well financially. The cuts are drastic," said education critic Rob Fleming. "B.C. has fallen well behind in terms of per-student funding and it will impact student outcomes. We shouldn't be complacent when one in five kids doesn't graduate school."

Education Minister Peter Fassbender agrees it's time to review and tweak the funding formula government uses to fund school districts, but denies the education system is being starved.

"The suggestion that we are underfunding or not supporting education is simply not true," the minister told Metro.

The Ministry of Education says it is providing $4.7 billion to districts in 2014-15, nearly $1 billion more than in 2000-01 despite 70,000 fewer students being enrolled in schools.



Vancouver School Board secretary treasurer Rick Krowchuk says underfunding has seen the district make deep cuts since 2002. MATT KIELTYKA/METRO

Average per-pupil funding is $8,653 in 2013-14 (Statistics Canada figures from 2010-11 rank B.C. second-worst among all provinces).

Not covered in the funding are rising labour, building, energy and other costs that have far outpaced government spending increases.

Districts pay those costs out of pocket, leading to cascading structural shortfalls.

"Those are costs funding doesn't cover," said Krowchuk.

Education makes up the second-largest line item in the provincial budget at a time when government tiptoes "on a razor's edge" to balance its own books and maintain its credit rating, Fassbender said.

"The world has changed," he said. "I understand how hard work it is for the local school boards."

Without substantial changes, trustees fear that's a future destined to be without music programs, district-wide athletics, access to counselling or specialized teaching for children with special needs.

Garbage-to-energy plant ordered to stop burning medical waste

Aborted fetuses.

Order comes after learning waste from B.C. may contain human tissue

An Oregon county commission has ordered an incinerator to stop accepting boxed medical waste to generate electricity after learning the waste it's been burning may include tissue from aborted fetuses from British Columbia.

Sam Brentano, chairman of the Marion County board of commissioners, said late Wednesday the board is taking immediate action to prohibit human tissue from future deliveries at the plant that has been turning waste into energy since 1987.

"We provide an important service to the people of this state and it would be a travesty if this program is jeopardized due to this finding," he said in a statement.

"We thought our ordinance excluded this type of material at the waste-to-energy facility. We will take immediate action to ensure a process is developed to prohibit human tissue from future deliveries."

Kristy Anderson, a British Columbia Health Ministry spokeswoman, told The Associated Press that regional health authorities there have a contract with a company that sends biomedical waste, such as fetal tissue, cancerous tissue and amputated limbs, to Oregon, where it's incinerated in the waste-energy plant.

Small percentage

Marion County estimates that the facility processes 635 tonnes of in-county medical waste each year and about 1,100 tonnes from elsewhere, making it a small percentage of the total waste burned.

The B.C. Catholic, a Vancouver-based newspaper, identified the plant as Covanta Marion, based in Brooks, Ore.

When contacted by The Associated Press on Wednesday, a Covanta Marion representative said he did not know if fetal tissue was included in shipments from Canada or elsewhere.

The facility is owned and operated by Covanta in a partnership with Marion County. According to its website, it processes about 500 tonnes per day of municipal solid waste, generating up to 13 megawatts of energy sold to Portland General Electric.

County spokeswoman Jolene Kelley said medical waste has been included in the program for some time, but the commissioners never had any indication that fetal tissue might be included. "We learned that today," she said.

Commissioners did not say why they believe medical waste shipped to the plant should be free of fetal tissue.

Tories crack down on temporary foreign workers

Amid a roar of criticism, Employment Minister Jason Kenney took action Thursday against the government's scandal-ridden temporary foreign worker program by banning restaurants from accessing it.

Kenney issued the surprise moratorium hours after the C.D. Howe Institute released a scathing study into the program that concluded it had spurred joblessness in B.C. and Alberta, two treasured Tory strongholds.

The smackdown to Canadian restaurants came despite Kenney's insistence in recent weeks that only a small number of companies were abusing the program.

Vatican calling. Pope's phone call to divorcee leads to questions regarding church rules

What Pope Francis may tell Catholics in private telephone conversations doesn't reflect church policy, the Vatican's spokesman said Thursday.

An unusual statement from Rev. Federico Lombardi came after days of speculation that the pope wants to change Roman Catholic Church rules barring communion for faithful people who remarry after getting divorced.

The question arose after Francis reportedly called an Argentine woman who had written to him for guidance, saying her parish priest had denied her access to the sacraments because her spouse's previous marriage had not been annulled.

The woman's husband, Julio Sabetta, said Francis told his wife that she was free of sin and should take communion anyway.

Sabetta said he took the call from Argentina's former archbishop, Jorge Mario Bergoglio, on Monday afternoon at their home in San Lorenzo, in the Argentine province of Santa Fe.

Sabetta said his wife, Jacqui Lisbona, then took the call and spoke directly with the pope.

Word spread after Sabetta posted on Facebook that the pope had called. Then came news stories speculating that Francis will do away with the ban on divorcees — or even their spouses — accepting the wine and bread that represents the blood and body of Christ, and full membership in the church.

But Lombardi's statement — issued in Italian, English and Spanish — cautioned that "consequences related to the teaching of the Church are not to be inferred" from the pope's private conversations.

Robocall probe turns up no evidence

Long-awaited report. 'No discernible pattern of misdirection' found

A three-year investigation into allegations of fraudulent robocalls during the last federal election has found no evidence of intent to deceive voters, nor any evidence of an orchestrated scheme beyond Guelph, Ont.

A long-awaited report from commissioner of elections Yves Cote will come as vindication for the Conservative party, which has faced a cloud of suspicion for years over widespread reports of non-party supporters being directed to the wrong polling stations in the final days and hours of the hard-fought vote on May 2, 2011.

Quoted

"We followed all of the rules and we won fair and square."

Minister of state for democratic reform Pierre Poilievre

"Having carefully examined all of the evidence, the commissioner found no reasonable grounds to believe that an offence under the (Elections) Act has been committed," Cote's 32-page report, posted Thursday, flatly asserts.

However, the report also castigates the Conservative party for going ahead with calls to electors informing them of their polling station after Elections Canada had expressly told all parties not to do so.

Pierre Poilievre, the minister of state for democratic reform, said the report proves the Conservatives ran "an honest and ethical campaign" in 2011.

Cote's investigation is separate from robocall allegations during the same election in Guelph, where a young Conservative campaign staffer, Michael Sona, faces Elections Act charges for his alleged role in calls that impersonated Elections Canada. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Elections Act. Tories frame maligned bill as Ottawa elites vs. average Joes

What's a government to do when a litany of parliamentary watchdogs, academics, aboriginal leaders, editorialists and opposition politicians say your legislation stinks?

If you're Stephen Harper's Conservatives, you seize the opportunity to make the debate over the Fair Elections Act into a political wedge issue — average Canadians versus the Ottawa elites.

Pierre Poilievre, the minister of state for democratic reform, spelled this out Thursday in a luncheon speech in Ottawa, borrowing a favourite phrase from former Ontario Conservative premier Mike Harris — "common sense" — to draw a line between ordinary folks and the out-of-touch political class. Ontario lawyers spurn Christian law school

B.C.'s Trinity Western. Law Society votes against accrediting law school that bans gay sexual intimacy

The Law Society of Upper Canada's directors voted 28 to 21 Thursday against accrediting the B.C.'s Trinity Western University law school, meaning graduates will not be able to apply to the Ontario bar. There was one abstention.

The controversial Christian university wants to open the law school in 2016 and has the conditional approval of the Federation of Law Societies of Canada, the go-ahead from the B.C. government, and — most recently — accreditation from the Law Society of British Columbia.

Controversy over the school has centred on the school's "community covenant" — a five-page document students must sign that includes a promise to abstain from "sexual intimacy that violates the sacredness of marriage between a man and a woman."

Bob Kuhn, president of Trinity Western University, had made a plea to law society benchers (directors) Thursday morning, suggesting to vote no would be akin to "institutional bullying."

Even some of the 21 benchers who supported accreditation, took advantage of deliberations to say they did so against their own personal beliefs.

The issue has become so contentious a Victoria lawyer has gathered more than 1,100 signatures to hold a new B.C. Law Society meeting to try to reverse the decision and lawyers based in Toronto and B.C. have filed a lawsuit against the B.C. government for approving the school in the first place. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Dirty money? U.S. wants to seize cash allegedly linked to ex-South Korean dictator

U.S. officials on Thursday sought court permission to seize more than $700,000 US from the sale of a Southern California home they allege was bought with corrupt money provided by South Korea's former dictator.

Authorities said Chun Jae Yong, son of former president Chun Doo-hwan, bought a Newport Beach home in 2005 with money provided through bribes that were given to his father. The home was sold in February for about $2.1 million US, and federal officials seized net sale proceeds of nearly $727,000 US that were placed in an escrow account, according to the forfeiture complaint. With court approval, the money will be turned over to the South Korean government.

Chun Doo-hwan, a former army general, seized power in a 1979 coup and ruled the country until early 1988. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Larger-sized tourists to ride draft horses

Wild West. Horses are giving all people the chance to ride without concern

In this photo taken on April 21, wrangler Kyle Rood leads Joker, a Belgian draft horse, for a ride at Sombrero Ranches riding stables in Estes Park, Colo. The outfit uses draft horses along with quarter horses for tourists. P SOLOMON BANDA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wranglers in the West who have for decades cashed in on the allure of getting on a horse and setting out on an open trail say they have had to add bigger horses to their stables to help carry larger tourists over the rugged terrain.

The ranches say they are using draft horses, the diesels of the horse world, in ever greater numbers to make sure they don't lose out on income from potential customers of any size.

"Even though a person might be overweight, or, you know, heavier than the average American, it's kind of nice we can provide a situation where they can ride with their family," said wrangler T. James "Doc" Humphrey.

Humphrey's 10-gallon hat, goatee, black vest and spurs are a tourist favourite at Sombrero Ranches, east of Rocky Mountain National Park, where they have 20 draft horses, including Belgians and Percherons, and 25 draft horse mixes.

"I think it's wonderful that these people are looking to accommodate people of larger body size," said Peggy Howell, spokeswoman for the National Association to Advance Fat Acceptance.

The bigger horses have allowed outfitters to eliminate weight limits.

"I felt bad about telling people they're too big to ride," said Russ Little of Dry Ridge Outfitters. He said a 225-pound weight limit these days would cost him $6,000 a season.

Laura Ewing said that she was concerned before she saw the size of the horses.

"They're pretty hardy horses," she said. "They're not ponies." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"People of larger body size enjoy athletic activities just as much as people with what's considered normal body size."

Draft horses

Ranch operators say they began adding the bigger horses in the 1990s, but the pace has increased in recent years.

- Over the last 20 years, obesity has increased to more than one third of adults and about 17 per cent of children age two to 19, according to U.S. federal statistics.

While this dog is clearly in fabulous shape, the Whistle activity tracker he is wearing can help his owner see if he is getting enough activity. WHISTLE LABS INC./THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Are lazy dog-day afternoons over?

Is your pooch getting a pooch? A new activity tracker for Fido can help pet parents know if their precious pups aren't getting enough exercise

Bad news for lazy dogs: A new device, called Whistle, lets pet owners track how much exercise — or sleep — their four-legged friends are getting.

Whistle is similar to popular activity trackers designed for humans. It wraps around a dog's collar and syncs with a smartphone app, collecting data on how much activity and rest the pet had.

We tried it out on a dog, who would much rather sleep under the couch than chase a ball. It's no surprise to find out that the pup wasn't getting at least 30 minutes of movement a day.

Whistle pushes owners to take their dogs out on more walks for longer periods.

At $129 US, it is as pricey as some of the latest human fitness trackers from the likes of FitBit and Jawbone.

One major difference: Whistle syncs data to its app through Wi-Fi, as well as Bluetooth. That lets you check up on your dogs without being near them, so you can track how much exercise your dog is getting when left with dog walkers, a doggy day care or family and friends.

The Whistle app, available for Apple and Android smartphones, is nicely designed. Multiple people can download the app and see the same data through the same account, which is great if others help care for your dog.

The Whistle looks slick. It is round and is made of stainless steel. It weighs less than an ounce. It is about 1.5 inches wide and less than half-an-inch thick.

The device locks on to a rubber strap that is then wrapped around the dog collar to help it stay in place.

MIDDLE CLASS SOARS, AIRLINE TUMBLES

It's time for The List, Metro's unerring guide to what's hot this week.

1 The Canadian middle class. Really? Yep, it's all the buzz around Timmy Hos. No less an authority than The New York Times says Canada's middle class has passed the U.S. as having the highest after-tax middle-class incomes in the world. Booyah! Too bad for Justin Trudeau, who has based his entire platform on the collapse of the middle class. Right idea, wrong country, maybe.

2 Twit trending on Twitter. Remember the name Cliven Bundy, as it is now synonymous with the last gasp of unreconstructed racism in America. This bad old boy — and until recently a Tea Party hero — has been caught on camera airing his views on "the Negro." "They abort their young children; they put young men in jail, because they never learned how to pick cotton." Oh, and "I've often wondered, are they better off as slaves ..." Rancher Bundy was a right-wing poster boy for defying the U.S. government over grazing rights, but those howls are coming from former supporters breaking their ankles after leaping off the bandwagon.

3 Tyler Oakley, born again. With more than 137 million views and 4 million subscribers, LGBT advocate Tyler Oakley is a giant of the Internet. But in the words of his mom Jackie, he was once seven pounds and 12 ounces ... exactly 24 years ago to be precise. In his latest video, Tyler and his mom resurrect a VHS tape of his birth and watch the blessed event together. It's the first time Tyler's seen it and his reactions ("I look like a baby zombie gremlin!") are more fun than the actual event.

4 Air Canada has a bad, bad week. Not only were Air Canada baggage handlers caught casually tossing bags six or seven metres from the door of a plane into a bin below, a new survey shows that Air Canada has the second rudest flight attendants of any airline in North America, just behind Spite, er, Spirit. The best were Southwest and Alaska. In the interest of fairness, Air Canada was voted the best international airline in North America in 2011, but really, what has it done for us lately?

5 Jodi Foster has a good week. She marries Alexandra Hedison, photographer, actor (The L Word) and Ellen DeGeneres's ex-girlfriend. Hollywood. Such a small town.

6 Triumph of the underdog. Snatching victory from the jaws of defeat, the Montreal Canadiens may be the only Canadian team to make the NHL playoffs, but after sweeping the Tampa Bay Lightning in the first round, they may be more than enough to keep Canadian hearts glowing. At the same time, American Meb Keflezighi wins the Boston marathon, the first American man to do so since 1983. Meb was born in Eritrea, land of marathoners, but he's been in the U.S. since 1987, so during a year when Americans desperately wanted their legendary race back on an, um, secure footing, his victory counts as one for Team USA.

Metalheads have soft spot for cats

It's hard to imagine metal musicians being especially affectionate. But beneath the darkness is a softer side as photographer Alexandra Crockett reveals in her book Metal Cats. Her images capture hard-core metalheads as they pose with their felines. METRO

Q and A

Just a silly idea

ALEXANDRA CROCKETT
Photographer, 30, based in Oakland, Calif.

How did this photo series come about?

I texted about 30 of my metalhead male friends who I knew had cats. I said, 'Hey, if I did this kind of, like, silly weird idea, what would you think about that?' And they were all like, 'Oh my God, I really want to!' The project took me four years as I travelled along the West Coast.

If there's one thing that illicit leaps from Whistler gondolas and some of America's tallest buildings teach you, it's that it's hard to keep a good BASE jumper down. But the idea of sneaking to the peak of Dubai's Burj Khalifa, the world's tallest building, is likely a leap too far.

So what's the plan for hopefuls wanting to drop from the uppermost height of human construction? There's not really much you can do but bide your time and keep your fingers crossed for an invite. That seemed to work out just fine for champion jumpers Vince Reffet and Fred Fugen. (Via Skydive Dubai)

What women don't want

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Leslie Mann, Cameron Diaz and Kate Upton are three women wronged in The Other Woman, which opens this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Married man Mark King (Game of Thrones's Nikolaj Coster-Waldau) tries to push infidelity to Tiger Woodsian heights by cheating on his wife (Leslie Mann) with multiple mistresses, including Carly and Amber (Cameron Diaz and Kate Upton). "We got played by the same guy," says Carly. The three women form an unlikely friendship, drowning their sorrows in a sea of tequila shots before hatching a plan to humiliate and financially ruin the three timer.

The Other Woman. Revenge comedy falls to tired stereotypes on how women view men, but at least the outfits are chic

Richard: Mark, with The Notebook, director Nick Cassavetes made one of the most romantic movies of recent years. With The Other Woman, his pendulum has swung in the opposite direction. This is an anti-romance flick about sex, lies and adultery but it's ripe with laughs and some fun performances. Mann goes all in as a Lucille Ball-on-the-verge-of-a-nervous-breakdown type, Diaz has great comic timing, and even Kate Upton, who will never be accused of giving Meryl Streep a run for her money, is charming and funny. It's not Bridemaids funny, but I laughed out loud quite a few times. You?

Mark: Is it possible to like a movie but hate its sexual politics? Because that's how I felt about it. I laughed, especially when Leslie Mann was onscreen. This movie is certainly her personal best. She's amazingly loose and funny, especially in the first third of the film. But the revenge plot against the cheating husband left me feeling queasy. He's set up as such a cardboard lothario that he made the Kate Upton character look deep. There's a positive male role model in the film, Mann's brother, but he's so anodyne and threatless that I couldn't take him seriously as a character. The movie is interesting as a series of Rorschach tests about how women must view men — either cads or eunuchs — but I had to banish these thoughts or I couldn't enjoy the comedy.

RC: I see what you're saying, and I suppose the film is a bit mean-spirited and not terribly subtle in its examination of the dynamics between men and women, but it does get the girl power stuff right, and I think that's more the point of the film. This isn't a movie about the men; they are simply the McGuffins that forward the plot. This is a movie about female bonding rather than female blaming.

MB: Anyway, at least it's a good-looking movie, and the women's outfits are chic. Don Johnson is given a part that's more than a cameo, but less than a role. I think he could have been onscreen more with a beefed-up part. But Nicki Minaj, as Diaz' assistant, steals every scene she's in. I thought she was a hoot. Richard, did the soundtrack bother you? Such obvious choices, like New York, New York when the husband enters the city, or the Mission: Impossible theme when the three women tail the husband to find out what he's up to.

RC: Absolutely. The soundtrack is as subtle as Coster-Waldau's cheesy pick-up lines. Five minutes in, I was willing to bet Girls Just Wanna Have Fun would play … and I would have won that bet.

MB: And I bet the women will cheer and the men will groan at this flick.

National Canadian Film Day. Homegrown cinema lovers have plenty to choose from on April 29

scene@metronews.ca

Bon Cop, Bad Cop is one of the films on offer on April 29. CONTRIBUTED

"For the past nine years, Reel Canada has been introducing young people and new Canadians to great Canadian films and the response has been overwhelmingly positive," says Jack Blum, executive director of Reel Canada.

This year on Tuesday, April 29, the Can-con boosters are kicking their outreach up a notch with the establishment of National Canadian Film Day.

"We thought it would be great for one day a year to extend that invitation to all Canadians," Blum says. "We just believe that if we can overcome the 'awareness' barrier created by the huge promotional budgets Hollywood commands for its product, that people will embrace our fantastic legacy of great cinema."

To help celebrate the inaugural National Canadian Film Day, Cineplex has donated screens to show a variety of homegrown films, including the festival hit C.R.A.Z.Y. and Paul Gross's Passchendaele. The Reel Canada website boasts that great Canadian films will be "available in more communities on a single day than ever before in our nation's history."

"There are screenings happening all over the country," says Blum, "literally in every province and territory as well as online and on TV."

Jodie Foster

After not A Very Long Engagement, Jodie Foster weds girlfriend Alexandra

Jodie Foster is a married woman. The 51-year-old Oscar winner wed girlfriend Alexandra Hedison over the weekend, Foster's publicist confirmed, but offered no other details.

It's the first marriage for Foster, who came out publicly in a rambling, heartfelt speech at the 2013 Golden Globe Awards, where she accepted lifetime achievement honours.

E! says Foster and Hedison, a 44-year-old photographer based in Los Angeles, have been dating since last summer.

Hedison, who was previously linked to Ellen DeGeneres, is also an actress with TV credits including Nash Bridges and The L Word.

Oprah's vengeful ex-stepmother dishes on star

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Oprah's ex-stepmother, Barbara Winfrey, wants revenge. After she divorced Oprah's father Vernon, Oprah pushed Barbara out of the house where she lived with Vernon and which Oprah owned. Now Barbara is retaliating by dishing all in a Daily Mail interview. Here are the best bits:

1. She claims she has never seen Oprah and her long-term boyfriend, Stedman Graham, kiss, hold hands or seem romantic.

2. "If it's not more than friendship, they're giving every appearance that it is," she said about the close friendship of Oprah and Gayle King.

3. Oprah is obsessed with skin colour. "It's a real thing for her. It's one of the things she liked about Stedman. He has what we call 'high yellow' skin and soft hair … she liked that."

4. Oprah forces everyone to sign a confidentiality agreement. "Once you're in Oprah's world, she owns you," she noted.

5. There are rumours that Vernon is not Winfrey's biological father. Barbara claims he wanted to do the DNA test but Oprah refused. "She knows it would prove he IS her father. She can't quite believe that such a silly man could make such a magnificent creature," she said.

Richard Gere

Gere dates Padma Lakshmi

While Richard Gere is still in the process of divorcing Carey Lowell, his wife of 11 years, the Pretty Woman star has reportedly started dating Top Chef host Padma Lakshmi, according to Star magazine. "They're just getting to know each other," a source says, adding that the romance "started very recently." Gere and Lakshmi started spending time together when he headed to New York to work on his current film.

With so many unique grape varieties growing around the world, you could drink a wine made from a different one every day for the rest of your life and never come close to saying you tasted them all.

I recently tried a Turkish wine made from Öküzgözü: a piece of fruit native to Turkey's Elazığ province. I hadn't had it before and love that after decades of walking the wine beat, I'm still finding new-to-me juice.

Of course you don't have to go that far afield to try something other than merlot and chardonnay. There are plenty of mainstream countries producing wines from lesser known grapes.

Puglia, the heel of Italy's boot, has almost exclusive rights to Negroamaro — a dark, brooding berry that delivers well above its typically inexpensive price point.

The 2012 Mezzomondo Negroamaro IGT ($8.95 - $11.99) is majorly aromatic with dark berry fruit flavours and the grape's classic light bitter finish, which makes it a perfect partner for meaty tomato sauces and weekend barbecues.

Bacon and Egg Pie: Bake a different type of pastry tonight

THE FREE RANGE COOK
Annabel Langbein

1. Preheat oven to 200 C. Place a flat baking tray in the oven to heat — the pie will sit on this and the heat will help it to crisp.

2. Cut a piece of baking paper to fit a 40 x 30 cm baking dish or roasting pan. It should cover the base and reach about 3-4 cm up the sides. Remove the baking paper from the baking dish or roasting pan and lay it flat on your bench. Dust it with a little flour and lay 2 pastry sheets on top. Join the pastry sheets by pressing them together firmly with a small overlap. Roll out the pastry to cover the paper. Lift the paper with the pastry and lay it into the baking dish or roasting pan (it will reach 3-4 cm up the sides).

3. Sprinkle the bacon over the pastry. Top with the sliced potato and sprinkle with the herbs. Break 8 whole eggs over the top.

4. In a mixing bowl, lightly whisk the remaining 6 eggs with the milk, salt and pepper. Pour this evenly over the whole eggs.

5. Roll out the remaining sheet of pastry very thinly and cut it into narrow strips. Arrange the strips in a lattice pattern on top of the pie, trimming off any excess.

6. Place the prepared pie on top of the heated baking tray and bake for 12-15 minutes until the pastry is starting to puff and turn golden. Reduce the heat to 180 C and bake until the pastry is golden and cooked through on the base — about a further 35-40 minutes.

7. Serve warm or at room temperature with a salad and pickles or chutney. It will keep in a covered container in the fridge for 2-3 days.

Ingredients

- 3 sheets (450 g) ready-rolled savoury shortcrust pastry
- 250 g streaky bacon, cut into 2 cm pieces
- 2 medium potatoes, peeled, cooked and thinly sliced
- 3 tbsp soft herbs such as parsley, basil, chives or spring onion tops, chopped
- 14 eggs
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1 tsp salt
- ground black pepper

This recipe serves six to eight people. ANNABEL LANGBEIN

A perfectly Roasted Pepper Pesto

This recipe makes two cups. ANNABEL LANGBEIN

1. Rinse the peppers and pat dry. Place them on a baking tray and roast at 240 C for about 15-20 minutes until the skin is blistered and blackened. Remove from the oven and cover with a tea towel or put in a plastic bag to sweat. This will make it much easier to remove the skins later. Set aside to cool for about 20 minutes.

2. While the peppers cool, heat the oil in a small pan and sizzle the garlic and paprika for a few seconds. This helps bring out their flavour. Place this mixture in a food processor or blender.

3. Remove the skins and seeds from the peppers, saving the juices if you can. Place the flesh and any reserved juices in the food processor or blender with the garlic and paprika mixture. Add the almonds and coriander. Season with salt and pepper and purée until smooth. Pesto will keep in a covered container in the fridge for a week.

ANNABEL LANGBEIN, GUSTOTV.COM

Ingredients

- 6 red peppers
- 1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- 1 tsp paprika (plain)
- 1 tsp smoked paprika
- 1/4 cup almonds, roasted
- 1/4 cup fresh coriander, chopped
- salt and ground black pepper

Miller's unpredictable future fuels speculation

Contract up in June. Scottish striker, Whitecaps evasive about renewal or transfer plans

CAM TUCKER
cam.tucker@metronews.ca

The curiosity surrounding Kenny Miller's future with the Vancouver Whitecaps beyond June continues to grow.

Both Miller and club president Bob Lenarduzzi were on Team 1040 radio on different programs and at different times Thursday morning, and again the discussion shifted to the contract status of the Scottish striker, whose current deal with Vancouver's Major League Soccer side is up at the end of June.

"There's a lot of uncertainty, but what can you do?" said Miller, who has three goals in seven games this season, after Thursday's training session at UBC.

"It's a decision that obviously I can't make."

The Whitecaps are on the road this weekend, playing Real Salt Lake on Saturday.

It seems that, based on the comments of the 34-year-old Miller and head coach Carl Robinson, the player wants to remain in Vancouver and the club wants to retain him at least for the remainder of the year.

Money might be the big issue in the weeks ahead.

Miller signed with the Whitecaps in the summer of 2012 as a designated player. According to the MLS Players Union, his current contract guarantees him $940,000 in salary for this year.

Robinson was asked if Miller is in the club's plans beyond the end of June.

"I don't see why not. I really don't," said Robinson.

"Obviously I know it's coming to … a close because his contract is up and a decision needs to be made."

Speaking on Team 1040 radio, Lenarduzzi said there has been dialogue between the club, mostly through Robinson and Miller but nothing "definitive" has been discussed.

Robinson was asked about whether the club and Miller have discussed any financial details.

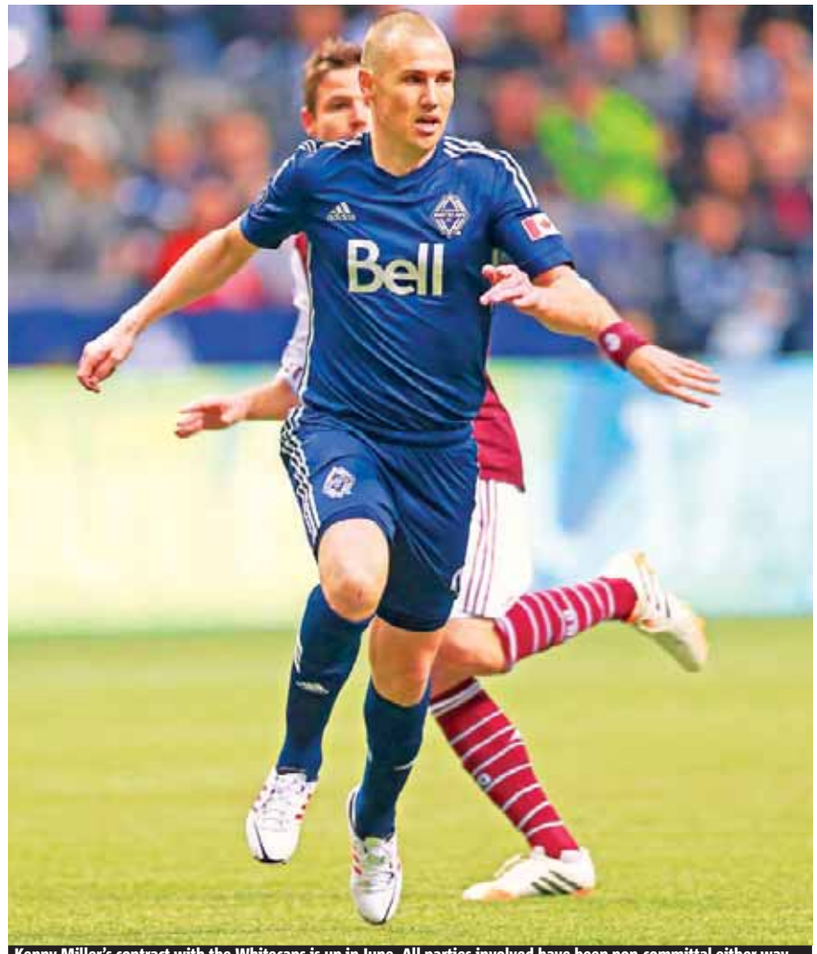
"There will be over the next period of time," he said.

Absences

Reo-Coker out, Morales a maybe

The Vancouver Whitecaps (2-2-3) could miss midfielders Nigel Reo-Coker and Pedro Morales for Saturday's road game against Real Salt Lake (3-0-4).

Reo-Coker did not join Thursday's training session due to illness. He hasn't played since the third game of the season due to a concussion from a bike rack incident. Morales has had ongoing back issues, and will be a game-time decision on Saturday.



Kenny Miller's contract with the Whitecaps is up in June. All parties involved have been non-committal either way.
JEFF VINNICK/GETTY IMAGES

The Whitecaps have some young and skilled strikers, particularly with Darren Mattocks and Kekuta Manneh, and Lenarduzzi suggested the club could also go in search of another forward via a transfer.

"Clearly what we don't want to have happen is to get to a point where there's a level of frustration on Kenny's part that it impacts his performance," Lenarduzzi told Team 1040.

Two apiece. Wild again dominate Avalanche

Charlie Coyle scored his third goal of the series for Minnesota, and the Wild dominated the Colorado Avalanche for the second straight game on their way to a 2-1 win Thursday night that evened the first-round matchup at two apiece.

The Wild outshot the Avalanche a stunning 32-12, establishing a franchise record for fewest allowed by Minnesota. Colorado has been outshot 78-34 in the last two games, with Ryan O'Reilly getting the only goal.

Jared Spurgeon used a slap shot to get a puck past Colorado's Semyon Varlamov just 3:47 into the game, much quicker than the 65:08 the Wild needed to score the last time. Game 5 will be in Denver on Saturday night.

Raps in need of star from Game 2

NBA playoffs. Coach, teammates confident DeMar DeRozan can rise to the occasion

After a wobbly playoff debut, Raptors star DeMar DeRozan returned to attack mode for Game 2 against the Brooklyn Nets.

The 24-year-old Toronto guard had just 14 points in Game 1, with eight of those coming from the free throw line, in a 94-87 loss to visiting Brooklyn that saw DeRozan miss 10 of 13 shots.

On Tuesday, a different DeRozan took the court. As he approached the Nets basket, it was as if his brain was in overdrive as it diagrammed possible plays. The possibilities seemed endless: dish off to a teammate, drive to the basket, pull back and take a shot.

The Raptors will need more of the same Friday when the series switches to Brooklyn's Barclays Center for Game 3.

While Toronto preaches a team approach, the Raptors know good things happen when DeRozan is rolling.

"I was just trying to feed him," Toronto guard Greivis Vasquez said of Game 2. "I was just trying to get him the ball — it was just, 'Go, go. We need you to get confidence.'"

Mission accomplished.

DeRozan finished with 30 points, 17 of which came in the fourth quarter when he made four of five shots and nine of 11 free throws. He finished the game with five fouls, hanging his head at one point at the end of the bench while his teammates huddled during a timeout.

But he was on point when he returned to action in the 100-95 win.

DeRozan's fourth-quarter output was just two points off the club playoff record of 19, set in 2001 by Vince Carter against Philadelphia. Again and again, DeRozan answered the veteran Nets as they tried to claw their way back.

For coach Dwane Casey, DeRozan showed his maturity by taking the shots the defence was giving him rather than trying to force things.

"He's growing," said Casey. "He's still not a finished product. We've just seen the beginning of a guy becoming a star." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Diehard fans

Reppin' the T-Dot in B.K.

They not only rock the ACC, they make a presence on the road as well. Diehard fans have been spotted wearing Raptors jerseys wherever the team has played this season.

But come Friday, Raptors fans will face a new challenge — cheering on their team in Brooklyn in a playoff game. Some dedicated fans are making the trip to what's likely to be a hostile Barclays Center.

"We've just gotta represent our team," fan Burhan Ehsan said. "Hopefully they can pull out a win." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Try not to be too serious about life today. There's a time to ponder the big questions but this isn't it. The planets urge you to be practical and to focus on what's in front of you.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
All things may be possible for you now but the planets warn you should be tying up loose ends rather than starting anything new. Are you prepared for what is to come? Get your act together.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You will find it easy to get your way. Others will take it for granted that you are the boss and do as you say. If you use charm rather than coercion you will find that everyone will do almost anything for you.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
No matter how much others might question your beliefs, if you are happy with them there is no reason to change. Yes, some of your ideas may seem irrational, but so what?

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Make sure you get value for money today because if you don't take care of your cash, others will get rich at your expense. You may not care now how much things are costing you but you will when you can no longer afford them.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
If you make an effort to reach out to those you love, this will be an enjoyable day. Some may be of the opinion that you lack the human touch but obviously they don't know you.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
No matter how determined you are to make an impression on people in positions of power you must not run yourself into the ground.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You won't be shy about letting those you care for know how much they mean to you. Creatively, too, this should be a good day for you, so let your artistic side come to the fore.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
If you have been too busy to spend much quality time with loved ones recently, you will get the chance to make up for it over the next few days. You've had your fun, now you want those you have feelings for to have fun as well.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You want to go out and have a good time but you also want to express your feelings openly and honestly. Yes, you can do both. This is the perfect day to use those three magic words: "I love you". Mean them.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You are on a winning streak at the moment and the planets indicate it will continue into the weekend. It doesn't have to be just about money — you will be lucky in love as well.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You will feel good about yourself today, thanks to the influence of Venus, planet of harmony, in your sign. Try to avoid work that may be strenuous because it's unlikely that your heart will be in it.
